The 57-room Brenton Hotel, slated to open in Newport, R.I., in June, named Jonathan Andrew Ross managing director. In his new position, Ross will provide leadership and strategic direction for the hotel through all preopening stages, including development, hiring, training and sales and marketing. Once the hotel opens, he will lead daily property management from guest services and operations to asset management. Ross, with 20 years of luxury hospitality experience, most recently served as regional director of sales and marketing, New England for Auberge Resorts Collection.
